

SHALE GAS Presentation

Jessica Ernst

Ernst, a 54 year old scientist with 30 years petroleum industry experience, is suing the Alberta government, Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB) and EnCana for negligence and unlawful activities.

Ernst alleges that industry contaminated a shallow aquifer with natural gas and toxic industry-related chemicals.

Recently awarded WOMAN OF COURAGE by UNANIM, a UN Economic and Social Council accredited NGO working for international justice at the United Nations, Jessica Ernst of Rosebud, Alberta is internationally known for her efforts to hold companies accountable for environmental harm done by "fracking".

UNANIMA International chose Ms. Ernst as its awardee this year as a part of its international "Water = Life" campaign. "Access to life-giving water is an essential right for all life forms," stated the UNANIMA coordinator, Catherine Ferguson. "Our members have experienced fracking as an enormous danger to their fresh water supply wherever it is carried out. We applaud Ms. Ernst's courage in standing up for her rights."
